

Taliban Neighbors

How do you serve as a Christian in a hostile region, where violence has become a norm, where the news for you is rarely encouraging, where you're held down economically, socially, and politically, and where traveling just from one place to another may make you the subject of a kidnapping? Bishop Rimalshah of the Church of Pakistan has had to find a way.

A slightly shorter version of this essay was published in The Christian Century, Jan. 13, 2009.

Read the essay here